DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

Built on a stone foundation is a small, one story two bay long, 'A' roof frame dwelling which is the smallest dwelling on the block. A leanto porch is constructed on its east facade which has three turned posts and a plain balustrade. At the top of the posts are pierced brackets. Access to the porch is from the north side, although the entrance to the house is located on the south bay. At the top of the windows and door is a small bed molding, typical of the turn of the century. The windows have 1/1 sash.

The walls of the dwelling are tan aluminum siding with white painted trim. A slate color roof contrasts with the red painted brick chimney. The building supplies an interesting contrast in the block.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The Fasbenner House is the smallest of the dwellings on Bohemia Avenue. It provides an interesting contrast to the two story dwellings. It may have come to its present appearance by accident, i.e. the top floor may have burned. It has always been used as a residence.
